Climate change occurs when greenhouse gases trap heat in the atmosphere. Carbon dioxide and methane increase heat retention and change global temperatures.